FROM THE LOW TIDE OF THE SEA TO THE HIGHEST MOUNTAIN TOPS

Community ownership of land in the
Highlands and Islands of Scotland

In recent years, communities in the Scottish Highlands and Islands have taken ownership of more than half a million acres – an area equivalent to that of an English county like Nottinghamshire or West Yorkshire. In places long characterised by contracting economies and shrinking populations, this remarkable development has resulted in new homes, new businesses, greatly enhanced self-confidence and the attraction of lots of new residents.

ISBN 978-1-907443-28-2

Illustrated by the photography of Cailean Maclean, with around 100 photos this is a book that needs to be read by anyone looking to understand today's Scotland

James Hunter, Emeritus Professor of History at the University of the Highlands and Islands, has written extensively about the north of Scotland and been much involved in the region's public life. A longstanding campaigner for land reform, he now provides the first comprehensive survey of an ownership revolution that is transforming the Highlands and Islands greatly for the better.
